In the fall of 2005, Brost Architects and Planners began a new chapter in its history. After 40 years of service to our clients, we relocated to the north side of Cedar Rapids, to Hiawatha.

The environment an architecture firm works in goes a long ways toward showing you their values and our office showcases both our architecture and planning talents.

For this project, we chose to relocate to an office park we designed called Longfellow Square. Located near Interstate 380 for convenient access for clients & visitors, yet within walking distance of several restaurants, banking facilities, a convenience store, and the Cedar Valley Nature Trail, this development does a wonderful job of balancing the modern needs of commuters, with a more intimate walk-able neighborhood development.

Architecturally, we created a space that incorporates sleek contemporary forms, but also playful color schemes that avoid the, too often, sterile gray and white tones of contemporary architecture. Every employee has access to natural light and our conference room technology and design has caused countless clients to walk into our office and say "This is exactly what we want"
